The Funny Side

Moira was struggling to get the tomato ketchup out of the bottle. As she was trying the phone rang and her 4-year-old daughter, Mia, answered it saying, 'Sorry, mummy can't come to the phone at the moment because she's hitting the bottle.'

Roger, the local police/school liaison officer was in Green Barn Primary School, Sherborne, Dorset, UK, on an official visit when Mary, age 6, approached him.

'Are you a policeman?' Mary asked.

'Yes,' answered Roger smiling.

'My mum said if I was ever in trouble then I ought to ask a policeman for help. Is that true?'

'Of course,' uttered Roger.

'Then will you please tie my shoelace?' said Mary.

Jenny was watching her daddy getting dressed in his dinner jacket before the party.

'You shouldn't wear that, daddy,' she murmured.

'Why, darling?' inquired her father of Jenny.

'Well you know it always gives you a headache in the morning, said Jenny.'
